“In the 80s, you had to go to a bar or answer an ad in the Herald, then wait three weeks for a reply.”

Now I can turn on my iPhone, go on any number of apps and be in a stranger’s bedroom in six-and-a-half minutes.”

Location Info

Description: A 6-sink central-island with 3 sinks on each side divides the room evenly. On one side, there are 2 shower units; the other side are 3 cubicles with multiple peep holes in stone partitions, whose cubicle doors open to the 3 sinks. The central island holds a massive mirror which extends the length of 2 1/2 cubicles this provides a lot of cruising ground, and acts as a visual barrier between people entering the 2nd entrance and those with the cubicle doors open. Often when no one is there, all 3 cubicle doors open up, and occupants stare at the central mirror at each other, with plenty of warning time before the 2nd entrance is opened.

Who goes there: Mixed.

How To Get There: 1. Head west on Quay St toward Tapora St 400 m 2. Take the 2nd left onto Tangihua St 160 m 3. Keep right at the fork 60 m 4. Turn right onto Beach Rd 120 m 5. Sharp left onto Anzac Ave 600 m 6. Continue onto Symonds St Destination will be on the left.

10 Symonds St, HSB Building, walk to the end of the covered walkway off the street and into the lift/stairs foyer. Go down the stairs to level 3 walk back around to the lifts and the toilets are in front of them.

SOCIAL IMPLICATIONS

Hook-up apps put gay bars out of business

JESS MCALLEN

Last updated 12:51, December 21 2014

LAWRENCE SMITH/Fairfax NZ

SHUT DOWN: Paul Heard has closed his bar, Urge, calling it a "tough" move.

Social media apps are killing the gay bar scene, claiming as their latest victim New Zealand's longest-running gay venue.

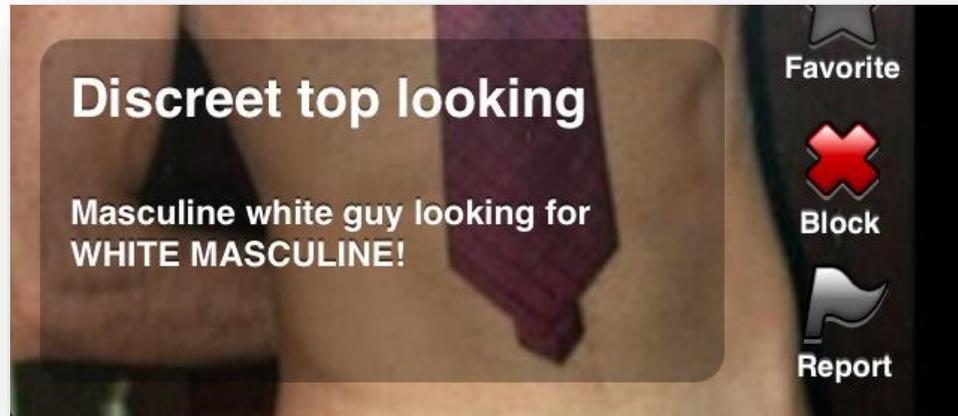

Urge in Auckland is the ninth gay bar to shut down in New Zealand over the past two years because of dwindling patronage, echoing the closures of international gay hotspots in New York, San Francisco and Sydney.

Sociologist Michael Stevens blames the internet, as apps such as Grindr, and social change, render such venues redundant.

"In the past you had to go to a venue to meet other LGBT [lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender] people, today you don't."

“People's ability to communicate on a one-to-one basis has changed. I get guys in the bar sitting on their phone chatting to somebody on the other side - the app says they're zero metres away.”
